For example, I may use a search string of: `account_type` Returning all of those objects that have the `account_type` of 'account'. If I wanted to search the PKC field, I'd use a search string of: `pkc` Returning all of those objects that have the `pkc` of 'book'. The `objectname` is stored as a field in the results array, and is a standard DocumentJS object. The `objectname` is displayed under the header 'Title', and the `objecttype` is displayed under the header 'Type'. The `objectmanager` field would be used for a row and a column for the results, as in the above example. I found this data structure to be useful when building a table to show results, as the data is easy to store in the JSX and manipulate as needed. `` var records = { }; var column = document.createElement('table'); var row1 = document.createElement('tr'); var

cell1 = document.createElement('td'); var
cell2 = document.createElement('td'); var
cell3 = document.createElement('td'); var
cell4 = document.createElement('td');
row1.className = 'details';
cell1.className = 'accessfix';
cell2.className = 'accessfix';
cell3.className = 'accessfix';
cell4.className = 'accessfix';
row1.appendChild(cell1);
row1.appendChild(cell2);
row1.appendChild(cell3);
row1.appendChild(cell4); records[row.id] = { objectname: row.id, objecttype:
row.data('type'), objectmanager:
row.data('manager'), objectfields:
row.data('field') };
column.appendChild(row1);
column.appendChild(row2);
document.body.appendChild(column); ``

A: Vuejs is the most famous JavaScript framework. There are a lot of different Vuejs frameworks, but in general, they are way faster than Angular because React and Angular are all about rendering components that contain a lot of useless DOM stuff. A: Doesn't
