Hypertrophic cardiomyopathy (HCM) is an inherited disease characterised by the presence of left ventricular (LV) hypertrophy and abnormalities of myocardial mechanics. Diltiazem is an antianginal agent of proven efficacy in patients with angina pectoris. The effects of diltiazem on LV mass, LV systolic function, LV diastolic function and regional myocardial function were studied in 25 HCM patients. Diltiazem resulted in a decrease in the LV mass index from 133+/-25 to 113+/-22 (P
