Contact-us page is at How to solve maximum depth recursion error I have a recursive function that is failing due to the maximum depth of recursion error. private boolean[] inOrderTraverse(char[] chars) { int arrayLength = chars.length; if (arrayLength == 0) return true; return inOrderTraverse(chars, 0, arrayLength-1); } I am trying to call the function with a char[] args[] and I am using args.length If I run it with a char[] args[0] I get the expected result. However, with args[args.length-1], I get the maximum recursion error. If I change args.length to args.length+1, it works fine. Any help would be greatly appreciated. A: Use recursion without bounds checking, that is private boolean[] inOrderTraverse(char[] chars) { int arrayLength = chars.length; if (arrayLength == 0) return true; return inOrderTraverse(chars, 0, arrayLength); } Here you call: inOrderTraverse(args[args.length-1]) You can check what you get using debugger.
